

STAYING IN POLITICS

The law says that unions must have a separate Political Fund to spend on campaigning

Recent CWU Campaigns:

Opposing the privatisation of Royal Mail

The off shoring and remote sourcing of BT call centres

Fighting post office closures

Closing the loopholes for agency workers

Members rely on decent public services and a healthy economy for their livelihood

The CWU must be able to campaign in parliament the decisions and laws made by politicians affect members interests at work

What happens if the CWU loses the ballot?

The CWU would lose the ability to campaign effectively on a range of issues like better pensions, better public services and better health and safety laws, because the law defines most ordinary campaigns as having a 'political purpose'

So vote yes to keep your political voice

Vote Yes to keep a stake in the laws and decisions that affect you

And vote yes to keep your union's right to stay in politics
